

Chinese language website of Dubai's award-winning Al Rowaad Advocates & Legal Consultants launched

1888 PressRelease - Dubai - Top UAE legal firm Al Rowaad Advocates & Legal Consultants is excited to announce to its existing and prospective clients that a new Chinese language version of its expansive and informative website has been launched.

Award-winning firm's (company) leader Mr. Hassan Elhais says the move is in recognition of the legal needs of the growing number of Chinese citizens residing in the UAE.

"The number of Chinese nationals who live in the UAE has been steadily growing and the population now accounts for a significant portion of the total number of residents.

"As one of the country's elite law firms, Al Rowaad Advocates conducts a lot of its work for international clients and across multiple jurisdictions; in fact, 98 percent of our clients are expatriate. While we already offered versions of our website in English, Arabic, Russian and French, we are delighted to be able to extend the numerous resources on our extensive website to a new linguistic group."

Citing embassy figures, BQ magazine estimated there were 200,000 Chinese nationals living in the UAE in 2015 - a total that is almost double the number of British citizens. Officials also tallied 450,000 Chinese visitors entering the country in the same year.

Mr Elhais says for those in need of legal expertise, where matters can be of extreme sensitivity, it is vital clients can access information in the language that they are most conversant with.
